

Abstract Of The Disclosure

A circuit configuration for operating a gas sensor is described, including a reference gas space in which an electrode is situated which is supplied with a reference gas pump current to maintain the concentration of the reference gas. A diagnostic system determines a 5 concentration change of the reference gas via a change in the reference pump current and a time-based evaluation of the sensor signal of the gas sensor.